Classic Series...

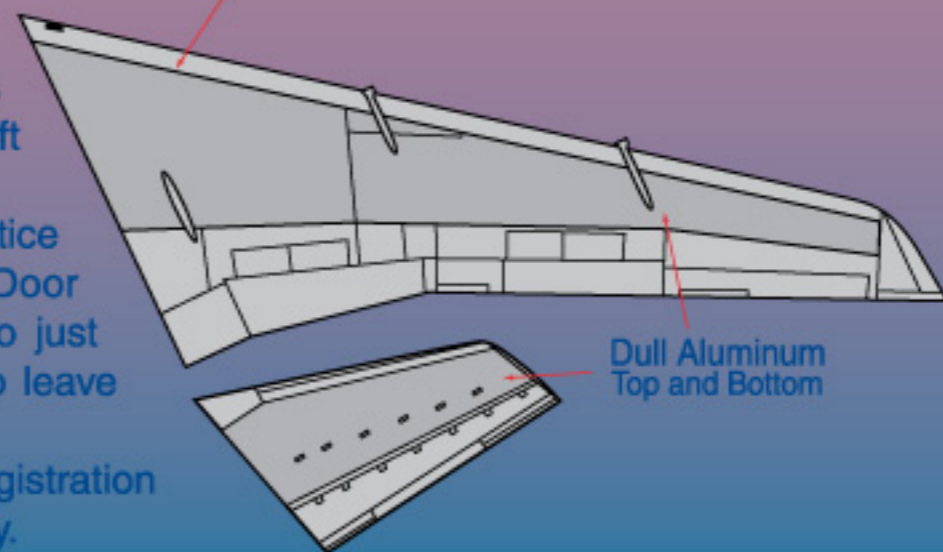

Northwest took deliveries of the Boeing 707-320B and C in mid 1963. They finally withdrawn from service in 1978. Notice that even the "B" series aircraft had a forward cargo door. Why is this not a "C" model then? By the lack of the "hat-rack door" aft of the wing.

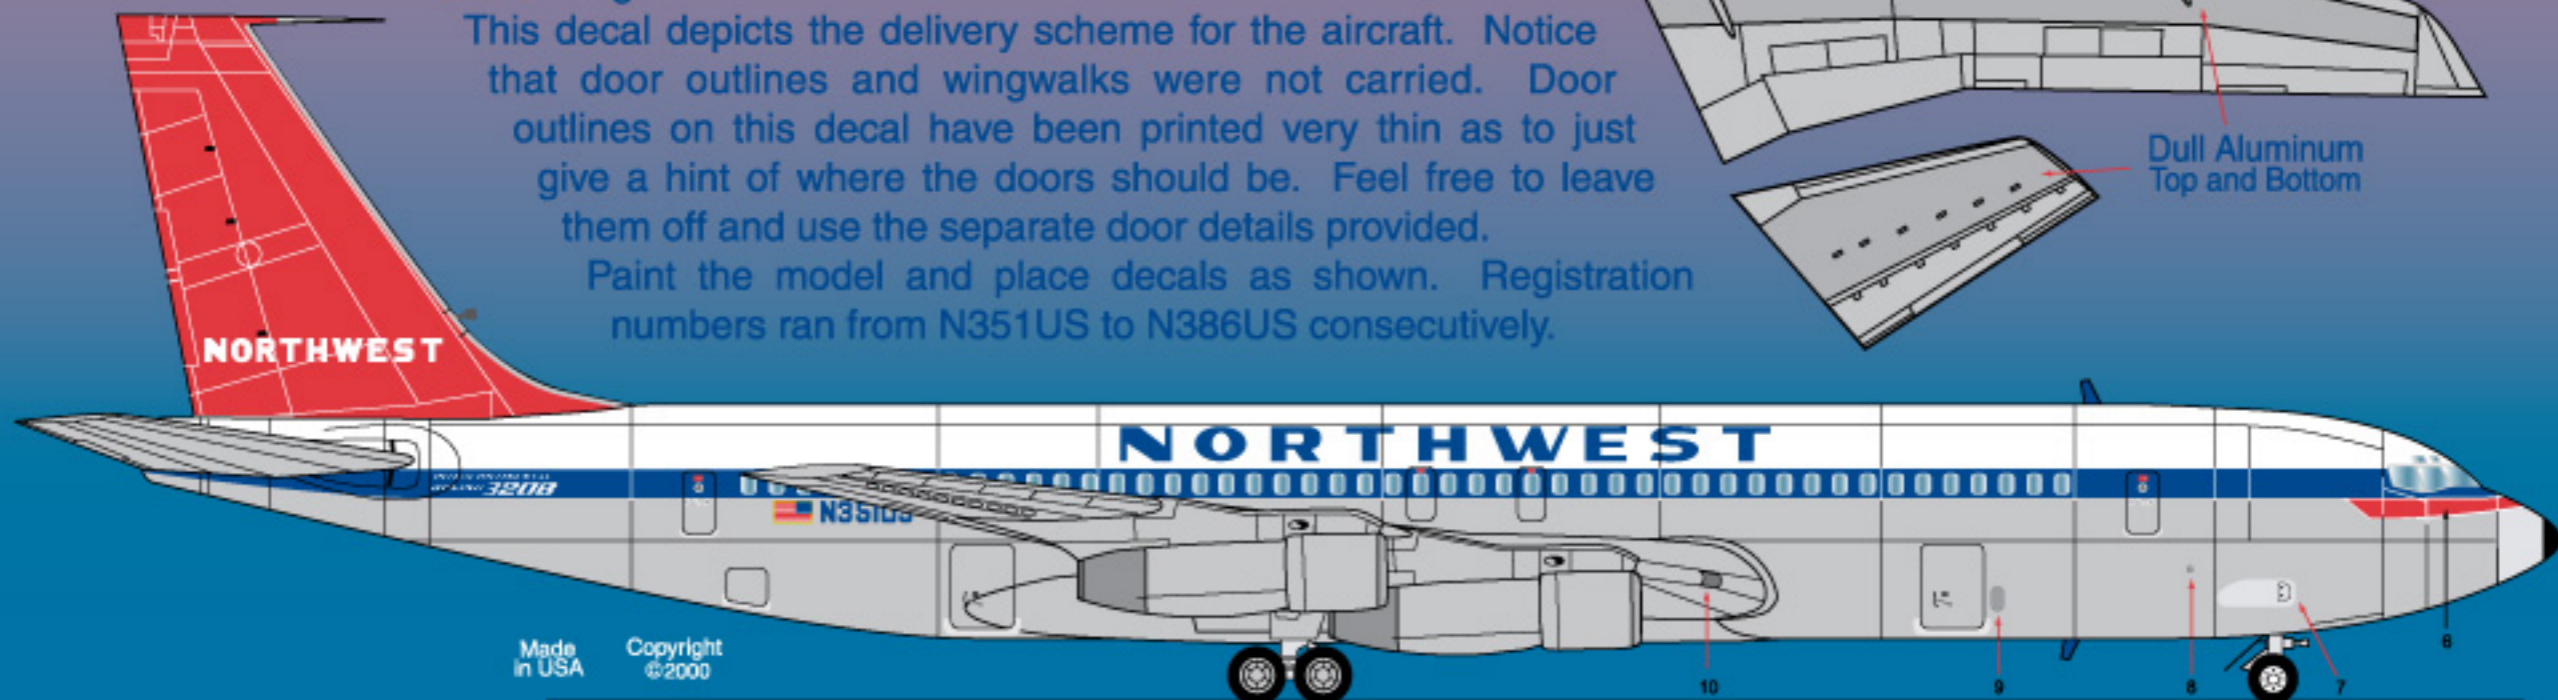

This decal depicts the delivery scheme for the aircraft. Notice that door outlines and wingwalks were not carried. Door outlines on this decal have been printed very thin as to just give a hint of where the doors should be. Feel free to leave them off and use the separate door details provided.

Paint the model and place decals as shown. Registration numbers ran from N351US to N386US consecutively.
