GB At the height of the summer of 1940, the fate of the free world rested upon the skill and courage of just a few young pilots as the RAF stood alone against the might of the as yet undefeated German Luftwaffe. In the air above southern England, Supermarine Spitfires and Hawker Hurricanes fought vicious dogfights with the fighters and bombers of the enemy. As they wheeled and fought across the sky it was down to a larger group of men and women based on the ground to keep these vital aircraft serviceable and armed during these crucial summer months. Refuelling was the duty of the then common Albion AM463 refuelling truck, which with its three separate hoses was capable of refuelling three fighters simultaneously thus speeding up the vital turn around between fighter sorties. The aircraft were rearmed and maintained by armies of fitters and gun crews, feeding thousands of .303 rounds into the gun bays of the waiting fighters. Finally, trucks such as the Bedford MWD were used to transport men and equipment across airfields and around the country in this fraught and dangerous time. While the majority of the recognition goes to the fighter pilots of the RAF, who risked everything to defeat the Luftwaffe, the contribution made by the ground crews and other ground personnel must not be forgotten, many were killed and injured in Luftwaffe attacks on airfields and they worked tirelessly to ensure the RAF emerged victorious.

FR En plein été 1940, le destin du monde libre dépendait des compétences et du courage de quelques jeunes pilotes lorsque la RAF resta seule face à la Luftwaffe allemande toujours invaincue. Dans le ciel au-dessus du sud de l'Angleterre, tandis que les Supermarine Spitfire et les Hawker Hurricane engageaient des combats aériens acharnés avec les chasseurs et les bombardiers ennemis, il incombait à un groupe plus nombreux basé au sol de maintenir le fonctionnement et l'armement de ces avions essentiels pendant les mois d'été cruciaux. Les camions-citernes Albion AM463, responsables des besoins en ravitaillement, disposaient de trois tuyaux individuels qui pouvaient ravitailler simultanément trois avions de chasse, améliorant considérablement le délai très serré entre les sorties opérationnelles. Des foules de mécaniciens et d'artilleurs faisaient passer des milliers de balles de 7,7 mm dans les compartiments canons des chasseurs qui attendaient. Des camions tels que les Bedford MWD étaient utilisés pour le transport des hommes et du matériel à travers les aérodromes et dans tout le pays pendant cette époque périlleuse. Même si les pilotes de chasse de la RAF ont contribué à la plupart de la célébrité, ayant tout risqué pour vaincre la Luftwaffe, il faut ne jamais oublier la contribution des équipes et d'autres personnels au sol qui travaillaient infatigablement pour assurer la victoire de la RAF. Beaucoup d'entre eux furent tués ou blessés lors des attaques allemandes contre les aérodromes.

DE Im Hochsommer 1940 hing das Geschick der freien Welt von den Fähigkeiten und dem Mut einer relativ geringen Zahl von jungen Piloten ab, da damals lediglich die RAF der bis dahin unbesiegten Luftwaffe der Wehrmacht gegenüberstand. Im Luftraum über Südengland kämpften Supermarine Spitfires und Hawker Hurricanes in verbissenen Nahkämpfen mit gegnerischen Jägern und Bombern des Deutschen Reiches. Die britischen Piloten hätten aber ohne eine viel größere Zahl von Bodenpersonal ihre schwierige Aufgabe nicht erfüllen können. Es oblag nämlich in diesen so entscheidenden Monaten den am Boden tätigen Männern und Frauen, die benötigten Flugzeuge flugbereit zu erhalten und mit Waffen zu versorgen. Für das Auftanken von Flugzeugen waren vor allem die verbreitet eingesetzten Tankwagen des Typs Albion AM463 zuständig. Mit drei separaten Tankschläuchen versehen, konnten diese Tanker gleichzeitig drei Kampfflugzeuge mit Kraftstoff versorgen. Damit konnten diese zwischen ihren Einsätzen beschleunigt abgefertigt werden. Die Flugzeuge wurden durch zahlreiche Techniker und Geschützmannschaften mit Waffen beladen und gewartet, wobei die wartenden Jagdmaschinen mit Tausenden 7,7 mm Projektilen bestückt wurden. Dazu noch waren in dieser spannungsgeladenen und gefährlichen Zeit spezielle Nutzfahrzeuge, beispielsweise der Bedford MWD, zur Beförderung von Besatzungen und Ausrüstungen auf Flugfeldern und im Überlandverkehr eingesetzt. Während die überwiegende Anerkennung den Piloten der RAF gezollt wird, die ihr Leben bedingungslos für die Überwindung der Luftwaffe einsetzten, sollte der Beitrag der Bodenmannschaften und von anderem Bodenpersonal nicht vergessen werden. Viele dieser Menschen wurden bei Angriffen der Luftwaffe auf Flugfelder getötet oder verletzt, während sie unermüdet bestrebt waren, den Erfolg der RAF sicherzustellen.

ES En pleno verano de 1940, el destino del mundo libre dependía de la destreza y valentía de un puñado de jóvenes pilotos de la RAF, que se enfrentaron en solitario contra el poder de la Luftwaffe alemana, jamás derrotada con anterioridad. En los cielos del sur de Inglaterra, los Supermarine Spitfire y Hawker Hurricane lucharon denodadamente contra los cazas y bombarderos del enemigo. Mientras los aviones despegaban y luchaban en el aire, un nutrido grupo de hombres y mujeres se ocupaban en tierra de mantener los aparatos y su armamento en perfectas condiciones de servicio durante estos cruciales meses de verano. La tarea del Albion AM46, un modelo de camión de uso muy extendido en aquel momento, fue el repostaje de aviones. Sus tres mangueras independientes permitían el repostaje simultáneo de tres cazas, lo que permitió acelerar el vital tiempo entre despegues. Los aviones reponían su armamento y eran mantenidos por pequeños ejércitos de mecánicos y armeros, que cargaban miles de cartuchos de 7,7 mm en los compartimentos de armamento de los cazas. Por último, camiones como el Bedford MWD transportaban personal y equipos por los campos de aviación y por todo el país en estos momentos plagados de peligros. Aunque en gran medida debemos el máximo reconocimiento a los pilotos de la RAF, que lo arriesgaron todo por derrotar a la Luftwaffe, no podemos pasar por alto la participación del personal de tierra, muchos de cuyos componentes murieron o resultaron heridos en ataques alemanes sobre las bases de aviación, y que trabajaron sin descanso para hacer posible la victoria de la RAF.

SE Under högsommaren 1940 vilade den fria världens öde på några få piloters skicklighet och mod när RAF stod öga mot öga med det hotfulla och hittills obesegrade tyska Luftwaffe. I skyarna över södra England utkämpade Supermarine Spitfire- och Hawker Hurricane-plan blodiga luftstrider med fiendens attack- och bomplan. Samtidigt som dessa krävande luftstrider ägde rum måste en större grupp markbaserade män och kvinnor serva och bestycka dessa livsviktiga plan under de viktiga sommarmånaderna. Tankningen sköttes normalt av tankbilen Albion AM463, vars tre separata slangar kunde tanka tre olika attackplan samtidigt och således påskynda den tid som planen tillbringade på marken mellan uppdrag. Flygplanen bestyckades och underhålls av ett stort antal montör- och ammunitionsgrupper som försåg de väntande attackplanen med ammunition för 7,7 mm-vapnen. Lastbilar som Bedford MWD användes för trupp- och vapentransporter på flygfält och landet runt under denna oroliga och riskfyllda tid. Det är dock normalt RAF-piloterna som uppmärksammas mest för sina riskfyllda insatser i kampen mot Luftwaffe, men vi får inte glömma bort det bidrag som marktrupperna och andra markbaserade resurser svarade för. Många sårades eller dödades under Luftwaffes attacker mot flygfält, men de överlevande arbetade outtröttligt vidare för att möjliggöra RAF:s seger.
