A s/n FN430, flown by P/O Hannay, No. 1844 Squadron FAA, HMS Indomitable, Indian Ocean, August 1944

No. 1844 Squadron was formed in December 1943 and was equipped with the F6F Hellcat. In February 1944, the unit boarded the HMS Begum and headed for the battlefields of the far east. Operating from the HMS Indomitable, the unit took part in attacks against Japanese occupied territory as members of the British Pacific Fleet, and later on the Japanese islands outright. Hellcats delivered to the British naval forces carried the standard scheme of the FAA composed of colours similar to Extra Dark Sea Grey and Dark Sea Grey on the upper and side surfaces, while the lower ones were painted in the American equivalent of Sky. Aircraft that were put in service against the Japanese carried a simplified version of the national roundels, where the red was left out to eliminate possible confusion with Japanese markings.
