Legends in the making

The Berlin Airlift Historical Foundation acquired Boeing C-97G 52-2718 in 1996. A former KC-97, 52-2718 is one of only 2 remaining airworthy C-97's in the world. We plan to operate the "Angel of Deliverance" as a "flying museum, and classroom", in the same manner as we do with our Douglas C-54, "Spirit of Freedom". We plan to tell the story of the Cold War, from the Berlin Airlift of 1948 to the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989.

These topics will be represented as part of a Timeline-oriented display throughout the fuselage of the aircraft. It will be augmented by artifacts, photographs, personal experiences, and it will be all housed in the hull of a true Cold Warrior, a former KC-97. The KC-97 helped the USAF maintain a "round the clock" presence in the air by becoming the first real air-to-air refueler. BOEING C-97G ANGEL OF DELIVERANCE sn 52-2718 Manufactured by

Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle WA, as KC-97G and delivered to the USAF on April 27, 1954.
